Anscombe & Rivet

In a Million Words... or less

We are thrilled that your child is in our class this year! We believe in keeping a strong open line of communication between home and school. After all, we have something so special in common – your child. You are your child's first teacher and you know them better than anyone else in the world. We would love to start with a glimpse of who your child really is. What makes them so amazing? What do they struggle with? What are their hobbies or special talents?

Please email or write us about your child in a million words or less. If we were to sit down for 20 minutes over coffee, what would you want to share with us about your child? The information is confidential and is for us only. It gives us a whole new understanding into who your child is and what makes them tick. For example, if we know that Rory loves to draw, we might be able to have her use her talents on a class project. If we know Bray is terrified of spiders, we can be sensitive to his fears. We will learn a lot about your child from our time together, but why wait?

Please know that we are not judging your writing. We don't care about spelling or grammar. We care about what you have to say. If you feel more comfortable, have your child type or write what you say. Make this a team effort. Remember, it can be as long or as short as you want.

Thank you so much for trusting us with your child this year and thank you for taking the time to tell us about them.

Together, our Orioles fly to greater heights!!
